This book has been written to be within reach of the student, farmer, manufacturer and other persons interested in the subject of Fertilizers. Technical terms have been omitted as much as possible. It has been the aim of the writer to bring this subject up to date, not only from the manufacturers viewpoint but from the actual field results as well. A full discussion of the data in the tables has necessarily been avoided so as not to make the book too voluminous. A cknowledgments. The writer is indebted to the German Kali Works, Nitrate of Soda Propaganda, American Phosphate Mining Co., The American Fertilizer Magazine and The American Coal Products Co. for illustrations. Credit is given in the text for illustrations secured from other sources. J. E. Halligan. Baton Rouge, La.
