"Accidents and illnesses come as thieves in the night and do not choose their victims strictly on the basis of age." With this in mind, the decision to write a living will is pertinent to all of us--young and old alike. In this practical, thorough, and easy-to-understand handbook Joseph Beltran shows you, step-by-step, how to write your own living will--and what to include in it. As Beltran helps you sort through pertinent spiritual issues regarding living wills he also explores the ethical, legal, and theological issues and concerns surrounding them, as well as many other vitally important medical decisions.
