The story that began in Running the Inside Timeline continues....

Kansas, 1869. Travelers from the future have created alternate timelines and now the continuum is beginning to unravel. But Josh Mondragon thinks he can repair it. The only problem? He needs Cheyenne O'Shea to do it and she currently has a ticking time bomb inside her that none of them know how to diffuse. Cheyenne, still reeling from the loss of Cody, isn't ready to give up yet. As events unfold and she discovers abilities she never knew she had, she finds herself in Josh's future, a world more alien than the past she has been living in--for it is the domain of technology, where genetic manipulation and human augmentation are the norm, and where the virtual is so thoroughly blended with the physical, that at times she cannot tell the difference. Inside Josh's world, Cheyenne comes face to face with artificial intelligence and virtual beings with minds she can scarcely comprehend and whose curiosity knows no bounds. As Josh seeks his answers, Cheyenne finds herself drawn more and more into his world and the beings that inhabit it and as they prepare for the greatest challenge of their lives, Cheyenne discovers not only unexpected desires in herself, but the dark secrets that Josh keeps hidden from everyone, including himself. For his world holds the key: not just to heal time, but to heal her heart and mind as well.

A blend of romance, history and science fiction, Time Unbound explores the not-so-distant future of technology where the boundaries between human and machine will disappear; and in so doing, we must ask the question: how will we define the nature of life, lust, love and what it means to be human?
