The World of Plants (Mission: Science) Michael L Macceca, Robin S. Doak

Plants are amazing food factories. They make their own food from sunlight, water, air, and soil. They also provide food?nuts, berries, leaves, roots, stalks, and other plant parts?that humans and other animals eat. Plants create material for our clothes, houses, and furniture, and even the oxygen we need to breathe. For information on plants, read George Washington Carver, another book in the Mission: Science series.
